

Storm Alert — Hurricane Season

The 53rd Weather Reconnaissance Squadron,

.....a component of the 403rd Wing located at Keesler Air Force Base in Biloxi, Miss., is a one-of-a-kind organization. It is the only operational unit in the world flying weather reconnaissance on a routine basis.

The mission of the Hurricane Hunters is to recruit, organize and train assigned personnel to perform aerial weather reconnaissance. They provide surveillance of tropical storms and hurricanes in the Atlantic Ocean, the Caribbean Sea, the Gulf of Mexico and the central Pacific Ocean for the National Hurricane Center in Miami. The unit also flies winter storm missions off both coasts of the United States.

We are now in Hurricane Season 2013 and we remind you that Aerospace automatically suspends binding in any county in which any named Windstorm, Hurricane or Tropical Storm Watch or Warning has been posted until at least 72 hours has elapsed from the time the Watch or Warning has been lifted.

Business which has been already bound by an Aerospace underwriter will remain covered.

During any period of imminent storm danger, we encourage you to get in touch with policyholders – particularly those that reside in a location distant from their aircraft – and suggest that they take precautions to move the aircraft to safer locations while the opportunity exists.

In the event that you find yourself having to evacuate your usual location, we'd also like to remind you that you can obtain coverage information for your business with us through Aerospace's website, www.aerospaceim.com, from any location from which you may access the web. Remember to bring your Aerospace password with you in case you should need to conduct operations away from your usual office. You may also report claims and/or email our staff from our site.
